To-DAY the managers of the Tribune fresh-air fund will send ninety children from New York to the Cumberland valley for a two weeks' sojourn. Sixty-five of the little pleasure-seekers will be quartered in Shippeusburg and among the farmers in the vicinity, and twenty-five in Carlisle. Homes have been selected for them in advance, and the persons who have volunteered to take a certain number of little city guests free of charge will be waiting for them when the special train arrives. There is an extraordinary crop of blackberries in the Cumberland valley this season, and the apple and peach orchards are laden with truit. If these ninety children from the crowded city don't have a good time it will be because they have no appreciation of country life.
